JOYTIME ALL LIFE LONG.

One fellow says it comes in May—another says it's June.
With lovers waiting at the gate—
or singing to the moon;
But music's always coming, an not a note goes wrong.
The world's glad heart is singing. "It's joytime all life long!"
Joytime on the hilltops, an' in the valleys sweet
Where brooks are makin' music
the merry winds repeat;
An' here's the very message they tell in sweetest song:
"Joytime today—tomorrow, an'
joytime all life long!"
—Frank L. Stanton.

SPLENDID WORK

IF it accomplishes nothing else the Umatilla County Good Roads Association has aroused undeniable enthusiasm for good roads within this county and this spirit is illustrated by the turnout for volunteer work today.

Within the past few months there has been more intelligent, organized effort toward improving highways than at any other time in the history of the county. The spirit is not confined to Pendleton, but is general in practically every section of the county.

What is more a broader spirit is coming to the front. People are laying aside community or sectional prejudices in the realization that the whole county must work together if anything worth while is to be accomplished.

This spirit is the immediate outgrowth of the agitation started by Cold Springs farmers for work upon a big scale in order to secure a highway to the Columbia river.

That agitation brought about the formation of the Umatilla County Good Roads Association—a representative county wide organization—with its plans for a road program for the benefit of the whole county with particular reference to securing the full benefits of the open river.

It is fine work and nothing could be more timely. It should be continued until we have trunk roads that will answer the demands upon them and until the side roads are put into the best possible shape.

Above everything else keep your eye on the auto truck and the use of trailers and upon the desirability of roads connecting with boat lines on the river. There are facts there worth learning and they will be ascertainable.

The opening of the Columbia to navigation places a new meaning on road work in eastern Oregon and our people are wise in taking hold of the subject with vigor and a firm desire for results.

WAR AND DEGENERACY

ONE of the writers at the front in Europe makes the declaration that peace does not breed cowardice and military degeneracy. He finds abundance of bravery among men who had never been to war before and who had no desire for the present strife.

He might go farther and say that war not peace brings degeneracy. War kills off the brave, aggressive manhood of a country. It leaves the old men, the cripples, and the cowards. Continuous war will tap the manhood of a country as nothing else can do. History furnishes illustrations to this effect.

From the eugenic standpoint war is reactionary, not progressive.

WHAT THE RESERVE SYSTEM DOES

HAVE you stopped to think that while this country suffered a heavy jolt when the Lusitania was sunk and there has been open talk of possible war our financial institutions have been absolutely undisturbed.

There is a reason for this and it is found chiefly in the federal reserve system.

It may be doubted that the great war, throughout the remainder of its course, will develop a mightier cause for financial panic and demoralization in the United States than the destruction of the Lusitania, with all its political possibilities directly involving the American nation, comments the New York World. It is not to be doubted that under the old national banking system, up to the outbreak of the great war, no cause or occasion of panic ever arose so severe as this.

We know what used to happen at times under that old system. We accordingly know what must have happened now were that old system or lack of system still in force.

Each one of over 7,000 national banks would have taken fright. Each one would have clamorously begun to withdraw its reserves on deposit in New York, because it knew or expected every other bank would do the same. These reserves would have been found employed in Wall Street on call. They would have been withdrawn and the stock collateral thrown overboard. Money would have risen to 100 per cent or so, stocks would have fallen 20 or 30 points, some banks have failed and other banks all over the country have suspended cash payments.

But what has happened under the new Federal Reserve Bank System? There has been no fright among the interior national banks. They have not been calling home their reserves, because their reserves are no longer in extended use here to inflate the stock market and then knock the bottom from under it. There has been turmoil in the market but no panic. Wall Street banks have not had to call loans, and call money has not gone above 2 1/2 per cent.

It has been a supreme test for the new bank system, and the new system has met it magnificently.

CURRENT THINKING

DAWE'S RIDE.

A Poem for Patriots' Day.
Everybody has heard of Paul Revere's Ride, of course; but comparatively few recall the fact that while Paul Revere was making his historic dash to Lexington to give warning of the approach of the British, another Yankee patriot, William Dawes, was making a similar ride by way of Roxbury, under orders from Joseph Warren similar to the orders given Revere.

Dawes played his part well; but Paul Revere (thanks partly to the poet Longfellow) has obtained such a hold on popular imagination as to almost completely overshadow the exploits of the other courier.

Dawes, however, as well as Revere inspired a poem, which is less widely known than "Paul Revere's Ride," but nevertheless well worth reading. It is entitled:

What's in a Name?
(By Helen F. Moore.)
I am a wandering, bitter shade;
Never of me was a hero made.
Poets have never sung my praise.
Nobody crowned my brow with bays;
And if you ask me the fatal cause,
I answer only, "My name was Dawes."

Tis all very well for the children to hear
Of the midnight ride of Paul Revere;
But why should my name be quite forgot?
Who rode as boldly and well, Got wot?

Why should I ask? The reason is clear—
My name was Dawes and his Revere.
When the lights from the old North Church flashed out,
Paul Revere was waiting about,
But I was already on my way.
The shadows of night fell cold and gray.

As I rode, with never a break or pause;
But what was the use; when my name was Dawes?

History rings with his sly name;
Closed to me are the portals of fame.
Had he been Dawes and I Revere,
No one had heard of him, I fear.
No one has heard of me because
He was Revere and I was Dawes.

Laws should be enacted compelling young physicians to practice on cats—because one life out of nine wouldn't be missed.

WARRIOR AND MAN HE WOULD SAVE

General Sam Hughes.

Private Lonsdale.

"If Private Lonsdale is shot by the German government three German prisoners here will be shot," said General Sam Hughes, minister of militia and defense in Canada.

There is no friend of General Hughes, beloved of the Canadians, who believes he will fail to carry out his threat.

Lonsdale struck a German officer in an attempt to escape, and was sentenced to death. He has been in a German prison camp for a long time. Since the sentence has been held in abeyance by the intervention of American ambassadors.

The other day three German prisoners in Kingston, Can., attacked their keepers. There are the three men General Hughes says he will have court martialled and shot if Lonsdale meets death in Germany. He insists the offense of Lonsdale was no greater than that of the German prisoners.

Seeking a Republican Candidate

(By W. J. Bryan in the Commoner.)

The republican papers are giving an increasing amount of space to the discussion of the availability of republican candidates. It is a difficult situation which the G. O. P. leaders have to meet and it is interesting to note the diligence with which they seek someone who can promise success. They would gladly give a large reward for an "in hoc signo vinces." Just now they are carefully weighing the relative popularity of candidates—how far they have found apothecary sales sufficient. The trouble with the republican party is that it is divided—not in the middle as it was in 1912, but still divided to such an extent that agreement upon a satisfactory candidate is a matter of great difficulty. Among those who still call themselves republicans there are two elements—the standpatters and the progressives. The progressives might be still further divided into NOMINAL and real progressives. A nominal progressive may be defined as a republican who is in favor of any progressive policy that the republican party will stand for, but is for the republican party whether it stands for any progressive policies or not. The standpatters have taken the measure of the nominal progressives and will make little effort to sugarcoat the pill which is to be administered. The real progressives—those who put principle first and refuse to follow any party that is not progressive can take kind—ly—in fact can not take at all—to the play which the republican leaders are formulating. The real progressive is pleased with President Wilson, and prefers his kind of democracy to standpat republicanism.

No one who is half awake can be ignorant of the fact that the republican party, as an organization, is still the party of plutocracy. If it is successful in regaining control of the government it will go back to a tariff higher than the one which existed before the democratic party came in; if entrusted with power it will, at the earliest opportunity, turn the entire federal reserve system over to the Wall Street magnates—a very easy matter for a president elected by Wall Street and obedient to Wall Street. If the republican party is returned to power the trusts will again be invited to spread a Balkanization of the country at the expense of the public. The leaders of the republican party are Bourbons to the backbone—they never learn. They have neither the desire nor the capacity for reform; they are chained to their idols.

Already the old slogans are being repeated, chief among which is "business." While this is the intoxication that brought the republican party to the verge of delirium tremens, the hold of the habit is still unbroken. As in 1896, it will be necessary for the democratic party to call attention to the gross misconception the republican leaders have of the definition of a "business man." It will be necessary to appeal again to the pride of the producers of the country and to call upon them to assert their right to be counted among the business men of the land. A "business man's candidate," according to standard republican leaders, is a man whose sympathies are with the whales and against the rest of the fish, who as president, would run the government "wide open," that is, for the benefit of big exploiters. None other need apply at the Root-Penrose-Cannon headquarters.

HIS DEFECT.

"I know he isn't handsome, Caroline," urged the mother; "but he is a worthy man, and I wish you could look upon his suit with a little more favor for your father's sake and mine. Joshua Thornbuckle once saved your father from bankruptcy. And a friend in need is a friend indeed."

"Yes, mamma," answered Miss Caroline; "but he isn't in-kneed. He's bowlegged."

THIS MAY ENTERTAIN

BUT THEY DON'T EVER DO IT.

After a long Sunday school lesson, and longer sermon, the clergyman requested the children to remain seated, as he had the extreme pleasure of introducing them to the reverend Mr. Simpson, who would now address them.

The little tots wistfully watched their elders file slowly out of church while tempting visions of a hot chicken dinner and other Sunday goodies appeared to their fresh young imaginations, and fresher appetites.

The Rev. Mr. Simpson came slowly forward. "My dear children," he said, fastidiously rubbing his hands together. "I—well, the fact is, I hardly know what to say."

But he got no further, for a shrill voice from a back pew lapsed out: Pleath, thir, juth they 'amen' and sit down."

PROVERBIAL STRAW.

Didn't you get enough sleep last night," asked the landlady.

"Didn't I get enough sleep," repeated the other, sitting up suddenly as though galvanised into life. "Tell me one thing: what on earth do you stuff your mattresses with in this place?"

"Stuff 'em with? Why, the very best straw it is possible to get in the whole country!"

"Ah, now I understand!"

"Understand what?"

"Why, where that straw came from that broke the camel's back."

A BRIGHT CAPTAIN.

During the civil war, at a camp in Ohio, a captain fresh from civil life and grand in a brand-new uniform, happened to observe two men shooting at a target.

"Here, boys," said he, "let me show you how to shoot."

"Taking a gun in hand he fired and missed."

"That," said he to one of the soldiers, "is the way you shoot."

"He fired again, and missed again."

"And that," said he, turning to the other soldier, "is the way you shoot."

"He fired a third shot and hit the bull's-eye."

"And that," said he, "is the way I shoot."

REALISTIC.

"When I grow up," said little Ethel with a dreamy, imaginative look, "I'm going to be a schoolteacher."

"Well, I'm going to be a mamma and have six children," said tiny Edna.

"Well, when they come to school to me I'm going to whip 'em, whip 'em, whip 'em."

"You mean thing!" exclaimed Edna, with the tears came into her eyes. "What have my poor children ever done to you?"

THE DALLES, Ore., May 19.—Two men were burned to death when three O. W. R. & N. outfit box cars were destroyed by fire a mile east of this city.

The fire occurred at 10 o'clock Tuesday night, but it was not until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning that the charred remains were found among the bed springs in one of the cars. It is believed the men broke into the cars to sleep.

Pastor Roasts Germany.
SAN DIEGO, Cal., May 19.—In a sermon bitterly attacking Germany's methods in the European war, Rev. W. B. Thorpe, pastor of the First Congregational church, summed up by saying that "it is now clear beyond a doubt that Germany has taken the position that there is nothing a nation is not justified in doing rather than suffer defeat in a war in which she is engaged."

Naturalized American Arrested.
BERLIN, May 19.—The Berlin police arrested Maurice Somborn, a naturalized American, who was elected from the American embassy at the order of Ambassador Gerard because of insults offered President Wilson and Secretary Bryan. Somborn declared he had lost his passport. The police agreed to release him so that he might search for the paper. It was said Gerard is determined to confiscate Somborn's passport and have him expelled from Germany. He considers him a firebrand in the present crisis.

DODGE WINS!

HILL CLIMBING CONTESTS AT SPOKANE AUTO SHOW

Not only winning over cars of its class, but it made faster time than the winner of the second event for cars selling from $1000 to $1550

EXTRACTS FROM SPOKESMAN-REVIEW.

"The first event was for stock cars costing under $1000 at the factory and there were seven entries. The Dodge and — car were started first and the Dodge immediately showed that as a hill climber it left little to be desired by slipping up the grade in 49.3-5 seconds. D. H. Riegel who won two of the stadium events with the Dodge last Thursday drove the Dodge and got away in lightning style. He no more than held his own on the level, but when the Dodge hit the grade it quickly drew away and finished five seconds in front." The nearest rival's time was 54.2-5 seconds. The Dodge won the Washington Trust Company Cup.

"After the regular events the Dodge and the car taking second place went up the hill in a special race for 125 side bet and the Dodge won again having a five second margin over its rival." Much money changed hands on the result, as both cars had many willing backers.

"The 100 yard dash was won by D. H. Riegel in a Dodge car. Mr. Riegel was compelled to compete in five heats, but each time he had a safe margin, his best time being 16 seconds. In this event the driver was required to stand by his car, enter it at a signal, start the motor and then stop the car over a mark 190 yards away. It required skill in starting, quick acceleration and sure brakes."

AUTO SALES RECORD FOR WEEK

DODGES SELL RAPIDLY

Childs & Duffy Dispose of 14 in 15 Minutes.

"That the first Spokane Automobile Show is bound to boost the number of sales far beyond the highest expectations is the opinion of the majority of local dealers. The method of having their cars side by side gave a fine chance for comparison and bringing out the fine points of each car."

"To the Dodge Brothers car, long termed the 'car of mystery' goes the banner for quick sales. Fifteen minutes after the show opened Wednesday morning Hal Childs sales manager, and W. L. Duffy had closed contracts for fourteen cars. To make the taking of orders more difficult the dealers could not promise delivery prior to July. The Dodge car is one of the centers of attraction at the show."
